RECEIVER IS CHOSEN.

George H. Quail Appointed to Take Charge of the Affairs
Of the Lima Savings Bank.

Attorneys for the Institution Cast the Sponge
Into the Arena This Afternoon---Patron of the Bank Threatens to Cause Arrest of Leighton.

When the doors of the Lima Savings Bank and Trust Co. institution are opened they will be opened by a receiver.

The attorneys for the bank, who have been endeavoring to secure an adjustment of the affairs of the institution, have been unable to do so. They have cast the sponge into the arena this afternoon, and a receiver has been appointed to take charge of the affairs of the bank.

The attorneys, Wirtz and Downing, and Leighton, this afternoon, that are officers of the bank, or rather the receiver, Mr. Leighton, would be able to take a sufficient amount of money to pay the claims of the creditors. The court also appointed Messrs. George McHaffey, C. W. Rist, and Frank E. Baxter as appraisers of the assets of the bank. It will require some time, probably two or three weeks, for the receiver to complete an inventory of the assets of the institution, the books and records being in a very tangled condition, and until such time as this inventory is completed and the true condition of the bank is determined it will be impossible for the receiver to receive any kind of a settlement of the claims of depositors and other creditors. It is stated by those who are in close touch with the situation that Mr. Leighton and his brother-in-law will continue their endeavors to raise a sufficient amount of money to make good the claims of the depositors and pay their claims in full.

JOHN RALSTON

Threatens to Cause the Arrest of President Leighton of the Bank.

John Ralston, one of the bookkeepers employed by the Lima Savings Bank, is one of the main persons who are leading to President Leighton of the bank, for a settlement of the claims against the institution. Mr. Ralston purchased a draft at the bank on the nineteenth day of last month to receive, by means of the treasurer, the sum of forty dollars to enable him to travel. He claims that he asked for a New York draft, but that Mr. Leighton gave him instead a draft on a Toledo savings bank. Since the bank was closed he received notice that the draft had gone to protest and he wrote to the Toledo bank, asking for information as to whether or not the Lima institution had a credit balance in the Toledo bank at the time the draft was issued. He received a reply which he claims stated that the Lima Savings Bank and Trust Co. had no funds in the Toledo institution at the time the draft was issued. He notified the attorneys for the bank and Mr. Leighton's brother-in-law, today, that unless the amount he paid for the draft was refunded to him this afternoon, he would cause the arrest of Mr. Leighton.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., Feb. 21, 1904.
PERSIN SYRUP Co., Monticello, Ill.
Gentlemen:—December, 1901, I weighed 151 pounds, and had been unable to eat a good square meal for twelve years without great distress to my stomach. I lost all confidence in medicine and doctors, as they had got hundreds of my hard earned dollars, with no relief to me. I used one $1.00 and one 50c. bottle of your Dr. W. B. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. I outgrew three suits of clothes in seven months, and to-day can eat all kinds of food without distress following, and weigh 170½ pounds. Have taken only one dose in one year, having an absolute cure of as bad a case of stomach trouble as one could have and live.
Yours truly,

FAVORS NOT ONE SIDED.

Ginn & Co. Didn't Overlook Some of Those Nice Little Courtesies

But Made Presents of Handsomely Bound Books In Order That the Firm Should Not Be Entirely Forgotten In the Future.

The board of education failing to have a quorum present at the adjourned meeting Monday evening decided to call a special meeting for tonight at which considerable important business will be transacted, or at least presented. The call covers a number of matters that need prompt attention, especially since it is the desire of the present board to complete the high school by the first of January, at which time the new board to be elected next Tuesday will take the helm.

While waiting in hope of a quorum the six members present including Prophet Bates, Frederick Klatte, McThea and Miss Dwyer, discussed educational matters and expressed their opinions regarding the frequently unaided reflections on their bones, which have boiled over in the editorial columns of the Gazette. It was not drawn at political lines either as the republican members of the board feel as sensitive as those of the opposing faction and declared openly that they were disgusted with the whole business.

Who got the $7 book? was an open question, and while none of the six members seemed to have been so favored the subject of receiving notices from book concerns was discussed with considerable feeling.

The Gazette in charging the American Book company with making out ratings more sure by adding to the library of board members should have first been more careful in carrying out its situation. Dr. Bates declared that he had never received a book other than samples of those used in the schools from the American Book company.

He could say and say openly that he had a nicely bound set of Shakespeare in his library that was sent to him by the agent for Ginn & Co.

I do not consider a present of this nature given with a view of flattery said the doctor, and while I favored Ginn & Co. in the contest over a change of text books it was because I did not think it wise for the board to make such a sweeping departure and possibly add an unnecessary expense to parents and pupils.

Mr. McThea referred to an incident which occurred the first year he became a member of the board. He was asked by an agent for the American Book Co. if he had one of the late dictionaries and a few weeks later he received one by express. Since then he had given his vote in support of text book published by several other book companies, including the one that has appeared so active in support of the republican school board ticket.

Mr. Frederick and Mr. Prophet both declared that the only books they had received were text books, a copy of which is always furnished members of the board in order that they may satisfy themselves of their claims for excellence. Mr. Frederick added that he had given nearly every one of them to children whom he knew were not able to buy.

At the meeting tonight the board will probably take final action in regard to the finishing touches of the McKelvey and Richardson building which have been neglected by two sets of contractors. Bates & McThea and Ginn & Co. Architect Chapin has secured figures from a local contractor, who agrees to finish the buildings for $175 and unless Ginn & Co. consent to meet the balance at once the board will proceed to have the work done by some one else.

Architect Chapin will have plans to present tonight for the approach to the new high school. It is the opinion of a majority of the board that the walks should be the width of the entrance, not the width of the door. The expense would be considerable but it is argued by everybody that any other plan would detract from the perspective and mar the appearance of the grounds.

Contractors Mowen felt confident that they will see the new building completed by the holidays. All of the funds are set to be done but it progresses rapidly and a volume of work has been accomplished in sixty days. It is a continuation of the present board's policy to properly develop the high school and plans are now being discussed with that view. The auditorium will receive prompt attention as it will be a shape for such exercises as may be decided on.

FIRST

Of the City Bowling Teams

Got Together

And the Solars Defeated the Cremos.

White Stars and Buckeyes Are Ready to Open the Basket Ball Season.

Game Will Be Played at Auditorium Friday Night and Will Be Followed by a Grand Ball.

The Solar City Bowling team and the Cremos were the first of the eight clubs in the city league organized this week to open the season on test and the Solars took two out of the three of three. The average was not enough to make it dangerous for those who are to follow, but the bowlers expect to improve as soon as they get their hand in. Miller's score of 184 was the highest record made last night and he was the only one to fall below the hundred mark. The following table gives the names of the bowlers and their individual records:

Refinery:
Stradley	163	185	174
Butlers	149	149	160
Miller	165	187	101
Nichols	115	105	138
Hooker	132	117	136
Totals	728	715	711

Cremos:
Blackie	124	112	151
Davis	136	153	116
Cochran	110	115	178
Dickey	102	97	111
Reed	153	155	172
Totals	627	628	731

The game last night was bowled on the Brunswick alleys but tonight the Brunswick and Metropolitan meet at the Metropolitan alleys and there will be something doing.

Lima vs. Piqua High
The high school foot ball team will go to Piqua Friday afternoon for a game and expect the contest to be one of the hardest they will go up against this season. Piqua has always had a strong team and has been able to stand high in a total percentage at the close of the season. Lima has improved wonderfully since the Fostoria game and may be able to defeat their old time rivals.

Rivals Won't Mix.
An effort was made today by the newly organized foot ball team to secure a game for next Tuesday with the other Lima eleven, but the proposition was declined. The Limas stated that could only play on Sunday.

There are still a few—not many, but a few—housewives hereabouts who are not using and under those circumstances a contest between the two first agreements is out of the question. It would be interesting to see which team was the strongest as both are fast but it looks now as though the question would have to go left in doubt.

The college team as it is best known, being made up of a number of representatives from the various schools is now left to secure a visiting team for election day and the result will be made known later.

Ready For the Fray.
The White Stars basket ball team got another short practice at the Auditorium last night and is fast getting into condition. The game with the Buckeye team Friday night will be the first real combat of the season and following it will come some of the strongest battles for the state championship. Basket ball in Lima this season will be the real thing. Those who attend the game Friday evening will enjoy a fine afternoon without extra cost.

NAME OF MARCUS HANNA NOT SPOKEN BY FORAKER

SENIOR SENATOR HAD SEALED LIPS

For His Late Comrade.

Coming of "Fire Alarm" Made Many New Democratic Votes.

The Democratic Contention.

That a Tariff Increases the Necessaries of Life Subtly Admitted by the Man Who Is Still Fighting the Civil War. Speech Considered Weak.

That Marcus A. Hanna, the idol of Ohio republicans, and millions in the nation ever live.

Hundreds of old line republicans in this country know that he did, but "Bloody Shirt" Foraker has not told them of it last night.

Not once in his address, which he had been ordered to make in answer to Judge Parker's honest and forthright daily arraignment of republican extravagance and Rooseveltian imperialism, did he mention the name of that republican who would have been president after the 4th of next March, had he lived—Marcus A. Hanna.

Senator Foraker appeared in the palm garden, under the chaperonage of George Quail, and it was proper that he should so come. That is what Quail is paid for—to look after Foraker and Foraker's interests.

The arrival of the man who cannot and dare not talk of the late Senator Hanna, and his close association with him, and for shame over the treatment he has given those who were loyal as the loyal republicans to the leader of a political party in Ohio, Senator Hanna, was greeted by an audience of two hundred people, but in a chilly reception—an ovation of one-half second despite his effort to arouse it by obscenities that would have done credit to a dancing devil.

The audience was one-third women, one-third democrats who had come to have their faith revived by Foraker's abuse, and the other third was made up of Foraker kids and Bill Farmer's without a set of resolutions in his pocket.

Later, there came a delegation of citizens headed by Glen Wallace Evans, Downing and Albert G. Le. The Campbells were absent, their time being occupied in an effort to elect a town and school board.

Quail then introduced the "Lumberwood Glen Club" so named because every member of it advocates a high tariff on the lumber that goes in his shoes. This aggregation gave a song about free whiskey and free silver, for the purpose of winning the Bryan vote, with a republican party. It was a master stroke of political diplomacy.

Quail again earned his Foraker salary by announcing that he was gratified as chairman of the republican county committee to meet such an audience, and by announcing that as a U. V. U. he had selected one who typified the boys of 1865, the commander of the great G. A. R. of Ohio, Col. Moulton, as chairman.

Col. Moulton was greeted with hearty and sincere applause. He said: "I am so glad to see such an audience in Allen county. When I came here 18 years ago the republican party was in the minority from 1860 to 1868, and it looks very much from this audience that this year it will not be any I hope from the bottom of my heart that you will all vote for Roosevelt. I came in late yesterday, and only then did the executive committee tell me that I was to be chairman of this meeting. I thank them for selecting me. I think that this evening the first thing should be some music."

More Harmony.

According to his request the addresses of a tariff on leather let out another dirty about St. Nicholas sleeping on Garland's breast, and that soon "hummers, scoundrels, popo-crats, growers, calvary howlers and democrats would all be sleeping there."

"Fire Alarm" Resented.

Col. Moulton then introduced Senator Foraker by saying:

"Now I have the pleasure of introducing, no, in presenting to you, the senior senator from Ohio."

Waving the bloody shirt aloft, and looking about him to see if there were any friends of the late Senator Hanna within his hearing, and having satisfied himself that all republicans present had bowed the knee to his domination and that of his allies, he said:

"I have been in this business for some time, and judging from surface indications we are on the eve of a national republican victory, and a victory also for the faithful republicans of Allen County," meaning, of course, Quail, the Campbells, Downing, Gale, Jim Hester, Glen Wallace and Charles Evans.

Then the high mogul in Geo. Cox's electric mine, and chief corporation lawyer of Cincinnati who has made himself more than a millionaire through his association with protected corporate interests since he became a republican United States senator jumped in medias res, by stating that the democrats had nominated a man for president that wouldn't talk.

He said, however, that Judge Parker had talked after his nomination, and nobody had ever found fault with.

Then W. J. Bryan.

For not talking, and that Mr. Bryan had an opinion on every subject. The speaker frankly stated that Judge Parker had been talking rather freely of late, but he did not say, what he could with truthfulness and decorum have said, and that was, that the president, Secretary Taft, Secretary Moody, Secretary Morton, Secretary Day, Secretary Shaw, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, Taylor, and every republican public official of any size whatsoever had quit attending to the business of the government and taken the stump in a vain effort to win the tide against Rooseveltism. Just here he put in a clincher. Pulling on his pince nez, which is troubled with corporation strabismus and electric malady, "scall-the-candy-of-Ohio," "Lumberwood Glen Club," he dug up a comment which he said contained a reproduction of the democratic platform for ages, but that he had only looked at it because of something Judge Parker had said about business prosperity, not being disturbed during the last two democratic administrations. In this connection he remarked that a democratic campaigner was to turn the rascals out, and he caused the senator to make the comment that it was absurd to even think of democrats knowing anything about book-keeping.

After this slight and mild mannered version the distinguished corporate influence reverted again to the one thing which bothered him, and is working the whole army of republican government officials—Judge Parker, and to get a starting point he read a portion of the tariff plank of the democratic national platform of 1884, to the effect that it declared for only such revision of the tariff as would not deprive American labor of its ability to compete with foreign labor. This the senator said was the policy of the republican party also, but he neglected to say any thing about the hundreds of thousands of aliens who are coming into this country under the present administration, duty free, and under contract to work for pauper wages, for tariff fee industries, and in competition with American labor.

By a specious argument based upon the welfare of the trusts, and the protected industries, he attributed the continued prosperity of Benjamin Harrison's administration to the McKinley tariff, and the panic which had its inception before the election of Cleveland in 1892, to the fear of the passage of the Wilson bill after Cleveland's election. Everybody—meaning the "infant industries" knew it—the panic would come—and that "Bryan with his 50 cent dollars, and gross heresy would cause it to continue—unless there was a maintenance of the gold standard, and a restoration of protective tariff. Nobody, he said knew how we were going to get it. Thomas B. Reed was president of the lower house, which was a republic. He had rules, he cut out debate, and that body passed the Dingley tariff law. In the senate, the democrats had a majority—45 to 12. The republican senators held a conference that is the same as a caucus when a school board is selected) and they decided to stand together as one man. We had rules also, and we shut off debate, and when ever a democratic or populist senator or two were in the cloak room, restaurant, or some place worse we would put through a section or two until we had it passed in its course. Then I took the train for home, and when I got off at Cincinnati, a gentleman greeted me on the platform with these comes:

General Prosperity.

From that moment, the speaker continued there has been no interruption. WE have been pouring out the most wonderful blessings upon you.

But, says the senator, I must get back to Judge Parker. It is wonderful, when a man once gets to talking how many things he can say that are worth looking after. Why this man Parker made a speech to a lot of real farmers and farmers from Wall street last week, in which he told them they were being robbed by the tariff. He wanted to say to you farmers, present, that your farm land is worth 50 percent more per acre than it was in 1896—and you don't have to apply Christian Science, or therapeutic suggestion to know it either. Then too, we have your wheat, corn and garlic protected against competition from Canada.

Wage Earners' Taffy.

This was a subject, the senator said, the representative of the great state of Ohio, he was compelled to know something about, and he had reliable information that no wage earner in this country need necessarily be idle, if he wanted to work for the wages the trust would pay. It was true that under a protected tariff he would have to pay more for the necessities of life, but just gaze upon the overbearing prosperity it brings down upon you, and the great and growing sums you have in savings banks.

Mr. Foraker touched upon the balance of trade, and the Philippine question, but not until in his discussion of the latter did he reach the high pinnacle on which he always lights when in one of his aerial flights. If the nation's soldiers were living, and some dying in the Philippines to preserve order, and the power of his government there, and the expense of keeping them there he said:

"If we didn't have them there we would have them here. The army is at its minimum now. We have spent less than $200,000,000 in the Philippines, and had, of that was because of the democratic attitude. I appeal to my old comrades of '64, to Col. Moulton, all of whom saw signs of Confederate weakness until Geo. B. McClellan was nominated by the democrats for president. The Reds knew it all the front as quick as we did and each confederate took a new hitch in his belt, and every one saying 'we will hold out until after election,' to see whether the democrats of the north will stop the war by electing McClellan. Tens of thousands of lives were sacrificed by this protection of that war. McClellan was defeated, and then came Appomattox."

In Bryan, Foraker continued to say, this country, had a peace with McClellan, because he discovered in Aguinaldo the George Washington of the Philippines, who said fight it out until Bryan is elected.

"This Aguinaldo," said the speaker, set an excellent example to democrats by taking the oath of allegiance to this country."

He took the position that "great national transactions were not measured by dollars," and that the people know to be true in its application to the republican party, by its record of extravagance.

However, in his judgment, the republican party in whatever it did in the way of conquest, was not actuated by a spirit of lust for power, nor greed for land, or to rule over more people. All they did in the grabbing line was pure unadulterated statesmanship, and while they were doing it he wanted it understood that he was not standing around down in Washington without doing a little statesmanship himself.

The speaker next took up the Isthmian canal, and from his standpoint, he annexing of Porto Rico, Hawaii, and possibly the Philippines was all done without regard to cost, and that it was for the purpose of national defense first and commercial importance next, and that without these ports of entry this country could not protect the canal which it was going to build. He cited a little annexing the democrats had done—Louisiana and Texas, but he couldn't find any for away islands they had taken on.

The senator closed his speech which beyond the red light he burned when talking about Geo. B. McClellan, was remarked by all who heard him, as lacking the old time fire of the man, with a plea for votes for "Roosevelt, the most strenuous of them all and the man most dangerous to democrats; the man who does things, because democrats get through looking at the constitution to find out whether it was right to do it."

By great efforts, the audience, weary of harkening to worn out arguments, was kept in their seats until the boys from Leatherstock chanted a cheap campaign song, and then everybody went out on the sidewalk to listen to one another say it was about the weakest address they had ever heard come from a presumably great man.
